No Lives Are Lost on Burning Vessel

Passengers and Crew Rescued in Boats, and Tugs Are Towing Antilla to Port.

OLD POINT COMFORT, VA., October 8 .- Radio messages received here late to-day from the coast guard cutter Onondaga stated that two tugs are towing the burning Ward Line steamer Antilla to liampton Roads, and that the passengers and crew, which took to the small boats, 120 miles off Cape Henry last night, are aboard the cutter, which is convoying the tow.

The pressage also asked that another teg be sent out to assist in fighting the fire in the cargo of lumber and sugar. The fire still was raging at that hour, but the cutter's captain reported that he thought it could be gotten un-

The Onondaga reached the Antilla at 26 o'clock this morning, in response to radio distress signals sent out by the line early last night. The passengers and crew in small boats were picked up and transferred to the cutter. No word came from the Onondaga as to whether any were injured in the transfer, but, with a smooth sea run-ning, marine men here believed the Antilla's company had been taken aboard without accident.

When picked up, the Antilla was Some 120 miles off Cape Henry, and she should arrive there about noon tomorrow, according to marine observers here. The exact location or exten the fire on the Ward liner is not known here.
